

MORROW CARRIES NEW JERSEY WITH ENORMOUS MARGIN

Swept Into Senatorial Nomination on Anti-Prohibition Wave

ENORMOUS LANDSLIDE Believe Victory Will Be in Excess of 200,000 Votes

NEWARK, N. J., June 18.—In the first bid he has ever made for elective public office, and upon the single issue of repealing national prohibition, Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow, won the Republican Senatorial nomination in New Jersey today, by the amazing and unprecedented plurality of more than 250,000 votes.

Every straggling election district that reported up to noon today, whether it lay in the dry and sandy stretches of South Jersey or in the teeming industrial centers of the North, only served to increase his lead and accentuate the Jersey revolt against the Eighteenth Amendment.

Congressman Franklin W. Fort, who enjoys close relations with President Hoover and has been, on occasion, the White House spokesman, on the floor of the House, running as a bone-dry, was literally engulfed by the great tidal wave of wet sentiment that rolled through the State from Sussex to Cape May.

With about 100 of the returns in, Fort's total hovered around 100,000 votes, while Morrow's soared above the 350,000 mark. The anti-saloon league seemingly had appealed in vain to Jersey voters in Fort's behalf.

Ex-Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, who turned wet after a political life-time as a dry, and who attempted to dispute the wet vote with Morrow, ran a very poor third. Long an influential figure in politics, Frelinghuysen today was able to muster only about 50,000 votes to compensate him for a long and costly campaign.

The smashing proportions of Morrow's victory amazed him, his managers, and politicians generally, as for the dries, they were literally dumbfounded.

Six Properties Are Sold by The Sheriff

DOYLESTOWN, June 14.—Six properties were sold yesterday by Sheriff T. Hart Ross by virtue of writs issued out of the Court of Common Pleas of Bucks County. The sales were as follows:

Tract including thirteen lots in Sellersville, seized from Jacob S. Lewis, were sold to the following: Grim and Grim, Perkaskie, $100; Grim and Grim, $400; J. H. Horn, Rockhill, $400; William Schlichter, $260; Earl F. Fargo, $260; Grim and Grim, $20; Grim and Grim, $80; Earl F. Fargo, $100; Grim and Grim, $100; Grim and Grim, $250; J. H. Horn, $310; John W. and Rebecca Pfrommer, $475; Ira S. Reed, Sellersville, $115.

Three tracts in Milford township seized from Peter Biebel and Mary Biebel, were sold to The Federal Land Bank of Baltimore for $183.97.

Two tracts in Warrington township seized from Tony Stepanik and Joseph Diachik, were sold to William H. Satterthwaite, for $163.92.

Tract in Plumstead township seized from Sylvester S. Billingsley and Esie M. Billingsley, were sold to The Bucks County Trust Company, Doylestown, for $2,500.

Tract in Doylestown seized from Herbert M. Ott and Anna G. Ott, were sold to the Doylestown Building and Loan Association for $265.31.

Tract in Doylestown seized from Fred W. Vogt and Anna C. Vogt, was sold to the Huntingdon Valley Building Association for $252.91.

Bristol High Game Is Halted by Downpour

Bristol High School and Langhorne High School played three innings of baseball on St. Ann's field yesterday afternoon before a heavy shower stopped the proceedings. Neither team had scored any runs but Bristol had the sacks loaded at the time Empire-in-Chief Elmer White called time out.

After a recess of a half-hour the rain failed to stop so the game was called. Bristol had but one hit, Moran's single over third base in the third inning. Langhorne made two hits, one by Downing and the other by Botke.

The game was being played as a play-off of the Lower Bucks County League which ended in a tie between Bristol, Langhorne, Newtown and Morrisville. Morrisville was eliminated on Monday when beaten by Newtown, 2-1. The winner of the Langhorne-Bristol affair is to play Newtown for the championship.

The game must be played on a neutral field today and it is most likely that the teams will go to League Island field, Morrisville. If conditions on this field are unsatisfactory the game will be played on St. Ann's field.

Blaze Destroys Barn On Booz Farm at Emilie

Fire early this morning destroyed a barn and the contents on the farm of Ann Booz estate, near Emilie.

The loss is estimated at about $800. The blaze was discovered by Emanuel Shoemaker, but it was well advanced at the time and fire companies were not summoned. The barn was not near any other buildings and the farm is unoccupied.

There were 15 tons of baled rye straw in the building which belonged to George LaRue.

About 14 months ago the house on the same farm was destroyed by fire which was thought to have been of incendiary origin.

The supposition is that the barn was set afire this morning as there were evidences of auto tracks into the place and foot prints were in the soft ground around the barn.

ELECTRIC TRAINS WITHIN TWO WEEKS TO TRENTON

Service on "Pennsy" to Start On or About July 1st, It is Said

MULTIPLE CAR SYSTEM

PHILADELPHIA, June 18.—Suburban trains on the Pennsylvania Railroad's New York division between Philadelphia and Trenton will begin operation by electricity within the next two weeks.

It was revealed by officials that the electrical operation will not wait on completion of the new sub-surface station at 15th st., and the Parkway, but the new equipment will be operated out of the Broad street station.

The New York through trains will continue for the present under steam operation, but within a year it is the hope of officials to have the electrical equipment advanced sufficiently to hook up Philadelphia directly with New York.

The Trenton electric equipment will be of the multiple unit system, which calls for overhead pantograph wires. The through service is to use electric locomotives, and possibly nearly thirty minutes may be cut from the present two-hour running time between Philadelphia and New York.

In March, when the railroad announced it hoped to have the Trenton suburban trains electrified by July 1, there was a hope that the new suburban station would be ready for the new equipment. However, hope of completing that project in time for the opening of the new service has faded, and it is now estimated that autumn will find the new underground station ready for trains.

With the completion of the Philadelphia-Trenton leg of the newest improvement, the Pennsy system will be electrified from that city to Wilmington. Eventually the work will be extended to Washington.

The Westinghouse and General Electric companies are building 150 electric locomotives for the company.

Miscellaneous Shower Is A Surprise to Miss Kennedy

Miss Vera Kennedy was an unexpected hostess to a number of her friends on Tuesday evening at her home at 112 Buckley street.

The party was arranged by Mrs. William Sigafos, Mrs. Walter West and Miss Eva Sollday, and was a complete surprise to the guest of honor.

Miss Kennedy recently announced her engagement to Arthur Bolton, and the affair last evening was a miscellaneous shower.

Upon their return from the "movies" Miss Kennedy and Mr. Bolton were greeted by all the friends. Then began the "gift hunt." To the chandelier in the living room was tied a large pink crepe paper bow, and from that was a pink cord which led to all parts of the house. Tied to this cord were the packages which were hidden in inconceivable places, and as Miss Kennedy would find one she would untie and admire the gift before proceeding on her hunt. Many beautiful gifts of table linen, other linen pieces, and glassware were here.

Refreshments of cantaloupe, sundaes, cakes, pretzels, nuts and candy were served in the dining room, which was tastefully decorated with rambler roses and pink crepe paper.

Those who were invited to this delightful shower were: the Misses Vera Kennedy, Beatrice Kennedy, Miriam Kennedy, Mary Helsel, Nettie McLaughlin, Mildred Shade, Dorothy Swangler, Elizabeth Crossley, Eva Sollday, Mesdames Bessie Kennedy, John Bruden, Edith Sommers, I. J. Hetherington, William Griffith, Howard Smoyer, Harold Bolton, Roy Jenks, Harold Bolton, George B. West, Walter West, William Sigafos, and Mr. Arthur Bolton.

VISIT ON COAST

Mrs. D. Rutono and son Louis, of Bath street, are making an extended trip to the West Coast, where they will visit Mrs. Rutono's mother in San Francisco and a sister-in-law in Los Angeles, California.

Today in History.

War declared against Great Britain.

HOOVER SIGNATURE PUTS NEW TARIFF INTO EFFECT TODAY

President Uses Six Pens to Ratify Measure in "Private" Ceremony at White House — Only Few Witness the Signing of the Measure

WASHINGTON, June 18.—Using six pens President Hoover yesterday signed the Smoot-Hawley Tariff bill, thus making the provisions of the twenty-first tariff revision in the history of the Nation effective at midnight.

It was a scant half minute before one o'clock yesterday afternoon when Mr. Hoover completed the details of giving his approval to the bill, which had been eighteen months in the making.

There was a burst of applause from the little group that had assembled around his desk, for the event followed by a round of handshaking.

Five minutes later the President was back at routine duties.

No other legislative enactment has such a far reaching effect upon the lives and affairs of so many of the people of the country as has a tariff bill. Yet, there was less of the State occasion atmosphere about the signing than has marked similar proceedings in connection with relatively minor legislation.

Four of the Republican conferees who framed the final draft of the bill, Secretary Mellon, his secretaries and half a dozen Washington correspondents were the witnesses.

The bulky engrossed copy of the measure had been returned to the Presidential desk from the Treasury Department in the morning, and Mr. Hoover had it before him when he received the members of the press at the signing.

TELLS OF WORK DONE AT THE "CROSSING"

Samuel C. Eastburn, Member of Park Commission, Explains Work Done

SPEAKS OF NEW BRIDGE

LANGHORNE, June 18.—Pre-Revolutionary times and what is being done by the Washington Crossing Park Commission to restore some of these landmarks were discussed in a talk given by Samuel Eastburn, a senior member of the commission, before the Daughters of the Revolution at the home of Mrs. Harriet W. Tomb, here.

Mr. Eastburn said in part that 150 years has advanced the nation beyond the desire for war. That Langhorne was so old that William Penn named its sister town Newtown, he explained, speaking of his home town.

The restored Thompson house at Neely's Mill will be opened to the public any time during the day after Saturday next, he said. The furnishings will include those of its period, and the commission will welcome contributions. Recently a license of the hotel conducted in this house in 1812 was acquired.

The old covered bridge will remain there, and the Neely Mill will be restored to its former condition. The old log watering trough with the accompanying log pump will be placed near the entrance.

A national memorial bridge connecting the States of Pennsylvania and New Jersey, at a cost of $2,000,000 will be erected and it is hoped to have it completed before the Washington Memorial of 1932.

The Tower at the top of Bowman's Hill is now under construction and this when completed may be reached by a macadamized road.

In the questionnaire which followed, Mr. Eastburn stated that about forty Revolutionary soldiers were buried along the river bank and that those at the top of Bowman's Hill were graves of members of the Pidcock family.

Mrs. Arnold, of Ardmore, state chairman of conservation and thrift for the D. A. R., stated that wisdom and thrift had made Pennsylvania second in the U. S. in forestry conservation.

Last year the Daughters of Pennsylvania planted 9000 trees and helped to educate the general public in conservation. She said 3500 wardens care for the woodlands; that the annual loss from forest fires is $100,000,000.

Pennsylvania forests received as guests last year the number of their entire population in their camps.

Obligation to the youths of the country cannot be set aside, she said; the criminal age is advancing and that this is the great weakening force that is devastating the country from within.

The hopeless task of the "Better Films" committee at Hollywood was discussed by Mrs. J. Lawrence Campbell. She said that since it is entirely a business proposition to cater to the demands of the public she thought reform would only come through education and this should begin with the parents.

Miss Mary Woodman was elected a member of the executive board to succeed Mrs. J. Kirk Leatherman.

Miss Anna Armstrong was elected to membership.

GIRL SCOUTS COMPETE AT SOUTH LANGHORNE

Almost 300 Girls Attend First Event of Kind Held in County

PRESENTED WITH STARS

SOUTH LANGHORNE, June 18.—Bucks county Girl Scouts on Saturday held their first rally at this place with representatives present from a large number of towns in the county. The rally was opened with assembly by Buglers Webb and Craven, of this place. Miss Owen Martin, a member of the National Regional Committee, was introduced, following which the national colors were paraded to the platform and "To the Colors" was played by buglers of South Langhorne. This was followed by the oath of allegiance.

Scouts Helen Carver, Elsie Nixon, Isabel Hilde, Elizabeth Tomlinson and Cathryn Pennessy of the Newtown Troop, presented the Trefall ceremony. Miss Martin presented Tenderfoot pins to the following Scouts: Percy States and Catherine McCloskey, Cornwells Heights, and Harriett Kirby, Thelma Buckman and Alice Weasner, Newtown.

Second Class pins were presented to Emma Douthart and Katherine Blatz, South Langhorne.

A game "corner spy" in which approximately 300 scouts took a part, was enjoyed half an hour.

This event of the rally followed by the contests which included fire building, knot tying, signaling, standing broad jump and corner spy.

Emma Douthart, South Langhorne, and Mary Chase, Scottsville, were the winners in the fire building contest, while Mary Phillips, South Langhorne, and Elsie Nixon, Newtown, were the winners in the knot tying contest.

Alice Woodman, Newtown, who jumped 6 feet 11 inches, won the broad jump. She bettered the jump of Marjorie Crouthamel, Perkaskie, by one inch. Viola Stuckert, Doylestown, came in for third honor in this event by jumping 6 feet 8 1/2 inches.

In the contest for signaling the winners were Scouts Patterson and Schlatter, Langhorne, and States and Kelly, Cornwells Heights.

Scottsville scouts took first place in the corner spy contest. Perkaskie was second and Newtown third.

These events were followed by the formal inspection, in which Troop 1, of Cornwells Heights, passed 100 per cent. During the rally selections were played by the South Langhorne Bugle Corps and each troop was asked to perform a stunt.

The girls from Perkaskie sang several good selections. Pearl Lowrie, Treves, portrayed Betsy Ross making the flag. Both troops from Doylestown presented comedy skits and two girls from Cornwells Heights dramatized the scout law. The South Langhorne girls gave a short play, "The Days of Chivalry."

Gold stars for 90 percent attendance at the meetings were presented to Alice Schlatter and Elizabeth Williamson, Langhorne; Mildred Carver, Newtown; Gladys Sylvester, Gladys Farmer, Ruth O'Brien, Mae Phillips, Wilma Prinold, Katherine Kaik, Katherine Balazs, Evelyn Buckley, Adeline Buccell, Genevieve Buckley, Emma Douthart, Emma Miller, Bernadine Packer and Elizabeth Pallig, South Langhorne; Marjorie Crouthamel, Helen Leichtfuss, Dorothy Bonner, Sara Markley, Catherine Dillon, Dorothy and Evelyn Stoneback, Clair Gerhart, Mary Green, Adele Sterner, Dorothy Hartzel, Marie Steeley and Helen Wassmuth, Perkaskie.

During the meet Captain Brenner, Cornwells Heights, introduced Mrs. Harry C. Kessler, Doylestown, president of the Bucks County Leaders' Association, who told the scouts of plans for a Girl Scout exhibit at the Doylestown Fair.

The rally came to a close with the buglers playing retreat followed by singing the first verse of "The Star Spangled Banner," the Girl Scouts' benediction and echo taps. Refreshments were served at the close of the rally. Captain Main and her committee, of this place, had charge of the event which was considered a great success.

UNEMPLOYMENT SURVEY MADE IN RECENT CENSUS

Small Number of Those Regularly Employed Are Now Out of Work

FIGURES ARE GIVEN

The census enumeration of unemployed in Bucks County has just been completed and today the figures were made available by Monroe H. Anders, supervisor for the district.

According to Mr. Anders the unemployment is about one percent of the 1930 population figures.

It must be remembered that the figures represent only those persons living in the district and usually working at a gainful occupation, who were reported on the unemployment schedule as without a job, able to work, and looking for a job.

These figures are preliminary and subject to correction, and will be supplemented later by data for other classes of persons not at work at the time of the census such as those who had a job but were sick or temporarily laid off.

"I was pleasantly surprised at the low number of unemployed in this district," stated Mr. Anders, as he issued the tabulations to newspapermen.

"Conditions hereabouts, as far as unemployment is concerned have apparently been grossly exaggerated in current rumors. Of course these figures are preliminary and subject to correction. As you will note, they represent only those persons reported as without a job, able to work, and looking for a job."

"In Bucks county the unemployed figures are 485 for townships and 737 in boroughs, a total of 1,222."

The figures of persons reported out of jobs, able to work and looking for jobs, by towns and townships in Bucks County are:

Boroughs—Bristol, 182; Chalfonte, 9; Doylestown, 59; Dublin, 9; Hulmeville, 16; Ivyland, 4; Langhorne, 11; Langhorne Manor, 3; Morrisville, 293; New Britain, 9; New Hope, 7; Newtown, 30; Perkaskie, 48; Quakertown, 52; Richlandtown, 14; Riegelsville, 15; Sellersville, 31; Silverdale, 9; South Langhorne, 13; Telford, 4; Trumbauersville, 6; Tullytown, 17; Yardley, 32; total, 737.

Townships—Bedminster, 20; Bensalem, 107; Bridgeton, 7; Bristol, 56; Buckingham, 5; Doylestown, 6; Durham, 6; East Rockhill, 28; Falls, 6; Haycock, 8; Hilltown, 3; Lower Makefield, 10; Middletown, 22; Milford, 16; New Britain, 61; Newtown, 7; Noxon, 10; Northampton, 12; Plumstead, 10; Richland, 39; Solebury, 17; Southampton, 5; Springfield, 16; Tintin, 5; Upper Makefield, 10; Warminster, 23; Warrington, 16; Warwick, 11; West Rockhill, 13; Wrights town, 1; total, 485.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hunter, of 226 Harrison street, entertained over Saturday and Sunday, Mrs. Hunter's mother, Mrs. Edna Singley, and her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Muffett, all of Camden, N. J. On Sunday the little daughter, of Mr. and Mrs. Hunter was christened. Dorothy Anne in the M. E. Church, Mrs. Charles Muffett of Camden, N. J., was the sponsor.

Miss Mary Doyle, of Otter and Linden streets, had as guests over the week end, Mr. and Mrs. Charles McIlvaine, of Ardmore.

Couple Are Wedded In Tullytown Christian Church

TULLYTOWN, June 18.—With Rev. William P. Young, officiating at a wedding ceremony in the Tullytown Christian Church, Saturday at 5.15 p. m., Miss Elsie A. Abrams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Abrams, became the bride of John D. Chase. The contracting parties are both residents of Tullytown.

The bride and groom were attended by the former's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. J. Cavin. The former Miss Abrams was attired in a dress and hat of light blue, while her attendant was garbed in peach.

A reception at which 60 guests were entertained, took place at the home of the bride's parents, here.

Mr. and Mrs. Chase, have left for a honeymoon trip to Florida.

John G. Steele, Jr., Among Graduates at University

John G. Steele Jr., of Bristol, was among those who were awarded degrees when Commencement Exercises marking the close of the 1929, academic year of the University of Pennsylvania were held in the Palestra of the University at 11.30 o'clock this morning. Steele was graduated from the College department of the University.

Approximately 1700 degrees in course were awarded at the exercises to students from practically every state in the union as well as from numerous foreign nations.

While an undergraduate at the University of Pennsylvania, Steele was active in student life. He was a member of the varsity boxing team for three years and of Delta Sigma Phi Fraternity. Prior to entering the University of Pennsylvania, Steele attended the Madison School.

GRUNDY MEDAL IS WON BY STUDENT FROM CROYDON

Miss M. Margaret Black Attains Average of 92.17 For Four Years

ANTHONY BURTON 2ND

Tullytown Boy Wins Second Honors in Class of 22 Graduates

The Grundy medal for attaining the highest average in the four year course at the Bristol high school, was awarded last night to Miss M. Margaret Black, of Croydon. Miss Black had an average of 92.17 for the four years of 1927.

The second honors went to Anthony Burton of Tullytown. Mr. Burton was presented with $5 and $5 was also given to Miss Clara Lerman, Bristol, who won second honors in the February class. The presentations were made by Doron Green, president of the school board, on behalf of the Fathers Association. It was stated that when the February class graduated no second award was given.

The 45 annual high commencement exercises were well attended and the seating capacity of the hall was taxed. There was a procession of the high school students into the auditorium and they were followed by the members of the graduating class. The graduates occupied seats upon the stage. As each member of the class entered he or she was greeted by applause of relatives and friends.

The Rev. Howard L. Zepp, delivered the invocation and there were selections by the school orchestra.

Anthony Burton gave the salutatory, taking as his theme "Flag Day".

Two choruses were sung by the high school students under the direction of Miss Marion Smith.

"Playing the game" was the title of the essay given by Anita Nonini and the Mothers' Association prize essay on "Aviation" written by Horace N. Davis was read by William A. Rotunno.

The valedictory "Questions and Answers" was given by Miss Margaret Black.

Dr. Wm. T. Hanzsche, of Trenton, N. J., was the speaker of the evening and he dwelt upon the vast changes which have occurred in the world. He took three words—machine, war, woman as his topic. Using these three words he showed the radical changes developed by the use of machinery and the moral decadence which he attributes to the world war and the part woman is playing in the business and industrial world today.

He urged the graduates to keep before them as they go out into the affairs of the world the three words—love, service, and sacrifice.

Each graduate was presented with a book as a gift from the school board and the diplomas were presented to the graduates by President Green and Russell B. Carty, secretary of the Board, as their names were called by Warren P. Snyder, high school principal.

BANK MERGERS

Proposal has been made for a law that would permit national banks to extend their operations beyond the boundaries of the states in which they are incorporated. Heretofore the bank has been a local institution, but the new law would encourage the creation of branches of the parent bank. Such is the banking organization in many European countries, conspicuous among which is England.

While the law is still merely in prospect, it is interesting to see how far the movement has gone without the stimulus the law is sure to give it. In the larger cities there have been many bank mergers, but the merger idea has not been confined to the big city.

The American Bankers' Association discloses that no fewer than 1,850 banks in 39 states, with resources of $13,275,000 have been swept into various chain groups by what the association calls the force of the current "seismic revolution" against individualism.

The banks are apparently being impelled into mergers by a force greater than the power of the individuals who control them. They find themselves involved in a virtual revolution of the banking system as it has been previously known. If so many banks have already entered into chain groups, how far proposed national banking law has become a reality.

SECRETS!

President Hoover's action in approving the state department's refusal to transmit to the senate foreign relations committee secret records and documents in connection with the negotiation of the London naval treaty is being both defended and attacked.

On one side it is said that to make them public would be to betray the confidence of other nations and their delegates, that the papers are not material to the discussion of the treaty and that neither the senate nor the people can demand their surrender.

From the other side it is heard that Senator Hiram Johnson asked for the papers knowing that his request would have to be rejected and for the purpose of arousing the suspicion that there is something in the treaty which does not appear on the surface and that there may be lurking in the background secret understandings contrary to American interests.

A reasonable view to take of the situation is that the treaty itself is a public document, into which anything that strikes the fancy of the individual reader may be read and upon which he may put any interpretation he likes, but how it came about need not enter into the judgment passed upon it. It will function as it stands and will not be affected by the hopes and fears, the difficulties and quarrels, the bickering and the bargaining which necessarily went into its negotiation.

A Hollywood film star who has not been divorced for seven years blames the oversight on the pressure of business.

To a Canadian library has been returned a book borrowed 50 years ago. No doubt the borrower now boasts a book of his own.

SYNOPSIS

Tom Allen, a young plantation owner, is on his way, unescorted, through the jungle to the prison camp. The Germans have seized the British territory of the East African Protectorate. Eric, the German commander, is his friend. Dawn, a mystery girl, is that same night being reluctantly initiated into pagan rites as bride of the native god. Dawn and Tom are infatuated with one another. Tom has just learned that she is as white of blood as himself. Till he knew this, he had been troubled, shep, sinister whip-man, before whom the natives cringe, is in the vicinity, and intends to wreak his base passion on Dawn, who will be chained till morning.

INSTALLMENT TWELVE
"Oh, have no fear of Malungu," Tom urged. "Let's risk everything. It's worth risking for our happiness, isn't it?"

But Dawn was firm in her determination to remain. "You must not talk to me like that, my Tom," she counseled. "Tomorrow—almost now—I am bride of Malungu. To night I must be alone. The black god will kill you."

A scornful laugh escaped Tom. "Black god. Yes, a cigarette-smoking black god."

"I don't know what you mean, Tom," said Dawn.

"I mean I don't want to leave you here alone. That black fiend Shep is about somewhere."

"Yes, he is, white man," Shep's voice sounded abruptly from the bushes, and presently he stood forth

"Why are you here?"

In the moonlight. He moved slowly toward Tom, his distorted face the face of a killer. "Go where you was goin'," he snarled, "and go quick!"

Dawn, frozen with fear, appealed to Tom not to go.

"Cause Dawn and me's got to be alone," Shep continued to Tom, ignoring Dawn. "We've got important talk to each other."

For answer, Tom pitched himself at the black man, like a football lineman leaping into a massed play. But Shep leaped nimbly aside and Tom struck the earth with great force and rolled forward.

Shep, quickly drawing his whip from his belt, stood waiting for Tom to rise.

"I've given you warnin', ain't it?" he muttered gleefully.

Then, as Tom reached his knees, Shep lashed forward with the whip. The lash encircled the Englishman's neck, and Shep, with a quick movement of the wrist, looped it into a knot that held the victim as securely as a lariat. Dawn screamed and pulled at the chains that bound her.

Tom, still held fast, was dragged toward his captor. As he attempted to rise and grapple with Shep, he was struck several blows in the face. Dizziness overcame him and he sank helpless to his knees, the granite-like fists of the black man beating a thunderous drum roll on him. He fought against an unconsciousness which would have amounted to death.

Dawn's shrieks of terror and concern revived his dimming senses. He heard her call his name.

"Tom! Tom!" she cried. "My lover, my Tom!"

"I warned you," he could hear Shep repeat viciously, as from far away. "I warned you. You white coward. You sneaking snake. You wanted to fight me when I didn't have no whip."

With the strength that creates desperately summon from their final resources, Tom lurched himself upward. The unexpectedness of his rise caused Shep, left off-balance, to fall heavily backward. Tom, now on his feet, threw himself forcibly on the black man. But Shep was prepared. His crashing fist sank deep into Tom's stomach and again he rolled half conscious on the ground.

But before Shep was able fully to recover his feet, Tom seized him

Mother Wins Custody of Abducted Daughter from Children's Society—but Only with Expert Legal Aid

MRS. CATHERINE MILLETT

ELIZABETH MILLETT

GEORGE E. BROWER

NEW YORK, June 18—Mrs. Catherine Millett has just won custody of her 14-year-old daughter, Betty, from the Children's Society, but it took six days, a legal fight carried to the Supreme Court, and the aid of District Attorney George E. Brower of Kings County and a brilliant criminal lawyer to accomplish it.

Thrown out of an automobile by two men who had kidnapped and held her prisoner for two days, the child appealed to the police to bring her to her home in Brooklyn.

Instead Betty was grided by a squad of iron-jawed detectives and taken to the Children's Society Shelter. There she was held for five days, while her family, Edward J. Reilly, famous attorney, and District Attorney George E. Brower all fought frantically to free her.

Day after day the courts refused to order the Children's Society to parole her in Brower's charge. They based their stand on the charge of Detective Frank J. Sullivan of the Missing Persons' Bureau that Betty had told him she had gone with the men willingly.

District Attorney Brower, formerly chairman of the New York Boxing Commission, pleaded for the girl's freedom, saying she had been taken illegally and that she would be more valuable in the search for her abductors if she was paroled in the custody of her parents.

The prosecutor pointed out that the girl was a Sunday school scholar, well bred and well behaved. Reilly, appearing voluntarily for the girl's family, denounced Sullivan's charge as "perjurious."

"This child," declared Reilly, "has been held without bail or parole—while the criminals drive around the treated like a first degree murderer—city in their car debauching other young girls."

When the Children's Court refused to give Betty to her parents, Reilly and the prosecutor brought the case to the Supreme Court.

Brower told Supreme Court Justice Louis A. Valente that Justice Samuel D. Levy, of the Manhattan Children's Court, had no jurisdiction over the Brooklyn child.

Judge Levy and Gerald Donovan, representing the Children's Society, denied this with great warmth. Justice Valente, after hearing all the testimony, gave Betty to her mother and Brower.

Betty, whose father is employed in the Cotton Exchange, was returned to the shelter amid the protests of Brower and Reilly and the sobs of her mother.

BLAZES TRAIL AT 73

Woman Who Amazed World by Mountain Climbing Years Ago Completes Air Tour of South America.

MISS ANNIE PECK.
MISS PECK
30 YEARS AGO.

NEW YORK, June 18.—Miss Annie M. Peck, the shy, fragile American school teacher who amazed the entire world twenty years ago by scaling one of the highest peaks of the Andes, has at 73 years of age just flown all over South America in an airplane.

To this aged student and author, danger apparently means nothing. Her thrill-cramped journey was made to enable her to revise her widely-read "Guide to South America," which she compiled years ago after blazing new trails all over the sparsely-settled regions of the southern continent.

Leaving New York last November, Miss Peck circled the entire area of South America, part way by steamer, but employed planes for the major portion of her cyclonic trip.

On returning recently the daring old lady scoffed at the idea of danger. "I never think of fear when my work is concerned," she told reporters, "as for sport or adventure or thrills, well people think too much of them. Money and adventure is all any one wants. The trip was my work and I don't regard it as an adventure."

The air jaunt was her tenth tour of South America. Miss Peck said that one of her most interesting hops was from Tlax, Peru, across the Peruvian Mountains, to Iquitos, also in Peru—a trip that took four to five weeks formerly. By using railways, mules and planes, Miss Peck accomplished the journey in three days. The flight from Santiago, Chile, to Buenos Aires, Miss Peck described as another exciting experience.

At Santiago, it was ninety in the shade, but her party left the torrid South American metropolis dressed in furs. Less than an hour after the start, Miss Peck found herself looking down at the tallest icecapped peak in the region. The thermometer registered 20 degrees below zero.

But in a few minutes it began to get warmer and on approaching Buenos Aires, the traveler found herself in midsummer heat once more.

Miss Peck traveled the thousands of miles from Buenos Aires to Miami in planes operated by the New York, Rio and Buenos Aires line. She told newspaper men that the South American air lines were much better developed than ours.

"I traveled by plane," said Miss Peck, "because I am interested in commercial air routes and not because of the thrills. I have been interested in South America, striving to promote friendship, commerce and travel between the two sister continents."

Miss Peck's guides to South America have been described by experts as among the best ever compiled. In her recognition of her achievement of being the first American ever to conquer the Andes highest peaks, the Lima Geographic Society named the north peak of Mount Hancaran, "Cumbre Ana Peck" and the Peruvian Government gave her a gold medal.

Senator James E. Watson, of Indiana, Republican leader of the Senate, and Senator Samuel O. Shortridge, of California, who had been conferees on the part of the Senate; Congressman Isaac H. Bacharach, of Atlantic City, and Allen T. Treadway, of Massachusetts, who had been conferees on the part of the House; Captain F. X. A. Eble, Commissioner of Customs, and Clayton F. Moore, clerk to the Ways and Means Committee, who is a former Philadelphian.

It was announced that Congressman Bacharach would not be present, having gone to Atlantic City for the New Jersey primary election.

At 12:30 o'clock a heavy downpour of rain set in. Ten minutes later Senator Smoot and Captain Eble arrived. They were followed by Congressman Hawley and Treadway and Mr. Moore followed by Secretary Mellon. Then came Senator Shortridge. All proceeded at once to the office of George Akerson, secretary to the president.

The photographers had in the main departed as had most of the newspapermen, when it was announced that the event would be behind closed doors.

Then came a flurry of excitement. It was almost a quarter to one o'clock, the hour at which the President had declared he would sign the measure, and Senator Watson had not arrived.

More time was passed and after a ten-minute wait, the President decided to proceed. Those who had been invited were ushered into his room and took their places around his desk, flanking him on either side. At the same time a number of the newspapermen were invited to witness the signing.

Mr. Hoover had seated himself at his desk with the bulky bill spread out before him, its last page, where he was to sign opened back.

Secretary Richey dipped the first of the pens into the inkwell and handed it to the President. There was an air of expectancy. President Hoover had grown suddenly grave. He glanced at the shiny new penholder, and with a decisive sweep of his left hand held the bill page to the desk and wrote.

The President had snatched up before hand how he could use six pens in the signing of the bill. To make the Congressional enactment a law required him to write upon it in his own hand "approved June 17, 1930, at 12:59 P. M. Herbert Hoover."

Thus when he had written as much with the first pen as he intended, he glanced up with a smile and Richey relieved him of the pen he had been using and gave him a second, which he had dipped in the inkwell and which was ready for business.

As Mr. Hoover turned anew to his task of making this second pen do its allotted portion of the work, Richey laid the first pen to one side and armed himself with the third one.

The group around the desk was shifting position to watch and when Richey dropped the pen as the President relinquished it to him and took over the new one, there was a laugh as the secretary to the President grabbed quickly for a blotter and wiped up the blot on the desk. Mr. Hoover joined in this and there was a flurry of audible comment in the way of asides at the expense of the flustered Mr. Richey.

It had come then to the point where the time of the signing of the bill was to be noted.

His pen poised, the President glanced upward and said "time?" and Atkinson, who had moved over to the gift clock over the fireplace on the opposite side of the room said "12:59".

Mr. Hoover then got down to the point of signing his signature—the last formality necessary to make the revision a law. This he did promptly, Richey furnishing the pens, and as he handed over the sixth and final pen, an aligned the used five in a row, the President completed his task.

Thereupon there came an outburst of handclapping from the four members of Congress, which ended as Mr. Hoover arose from his chair.

Congressman Treadway reached over and grasping his hand shook it vigorously and congratulated the Chief Executive. There was general handshaking and expressions of appreciation over his invitations to be present, and his guests departed.

A message has immediately been telephoned to Under Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills, notifying him of the signing, and in turn Mr. Mills signed the new Treasury regulations under the law and notice to this effect was telegraphed at once to all Customs centres.

Senator Watson never did reach the White House, nor was it explained why he was absent.

The sextette of new bright and shiny penholders and pens of the ordinary desk type, used in signing the measure, were still on the President's desk when his guests departed. It had been explained that each of the conferees would receive one, together with a letter stating the occasion upon which they had been used by the President and the fact that they had been presented to the particular individual receiving them.

Miss Amole is Bride of Thomas L. Durham Today

A beautiful and impressive wedding was consummated this morning at 9 o'clock in St. Mark's Church, when Miss Anne Marie Amole, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Amole, of Edgely, and Thomas Lewis Durham, son of Mrs. Mary Durham, of Fox Chase, in the presence of a large gathering of friends and relatives, were united in marriage with a nuptial mass, Rev. J. J. Burns officiating.

Miss Katharine Feasting presided at the organ and L. L. Englin's Wedding March, was played as the bridal party entered the church. Percy G. Ford sang before the ceremony, the selection being "Because God Made You Mine." During the offertory, Mrs. Carl Winch sang Rosewig's "Ave Marie," and the choir sang Gloria's "Second Mass."

The bride's attendants were her sister, Miss Margaret G. Amole, as maid of honor, and Miss Elizabeth M. Fearon, of Frankford, as bridesmaid.

William Derham, brother of the groom, was best man. The ushers were Frank Mahlon, of Jenkintown, Edward Reeves and Joseph Livesly of Fox Chase, Howard Amole, father of the bride, gave his daughter away.

The bride was charmingly gowned in a frock of white satin back crepe, made with long close-fitting sleeves, trimmed with lace, V shape neckline, also lace trimmed, and the skirt was quite full, having the uneven hemline, longer in the back than in the front, wherein was inserted a lace godet. A beautiful platinum pin was worn at the waistline in front. With this was worn white kid slippers, white silk stockings and her veil of lace which was cup shape with pearl trimming, was finished at the neck with a ruff of tulle. She carried a white ivory prayer book with white satin ribbons, in which were knotted lilies of the valley.

The maid of honor was attired in a sleeveless gown of orchid satin-back crepe, made with a close-fitting bodice, the long full skirt edged with tulle, was fitted to the bodice with deep shirtings. Moire slippers, silk stockings, the large horsehair hat trimmed with satin ribbons and long net gloves corresponding with the shade of the dress, completed her costume. She carried a bouquet of mixed flowers tied with orchid satin ribbon.

Miss Fearon, the bridesmaid, looked attractive in a gown of Nile green georgette, made with a tight-fitting bodice, with a V shape neck line and sleeveless. The skirt was full, with uneven hemline the edge being scalloped and it was trimmed with rose petal shaped tiers of the material. She also wore crepe-de-chine slippers, silk stockings, long net gloves and a large horse-hair hat trimmed with satin ribbon, to match her dress, and her bouquet made up of mixed flowers, tied with satin ribbon, blended with the dress.

At eleven thirty, a wedding breakfast and reception took place at Cadwallader Mansion, Trenton. The breakfast was served to the bridal party and the immediate families, on the porch of the mansion, which was beautifully decorated with ferns.

The happily married couple left on a three weeks' motor trip to Lake George and Canada. The bride's travelling gown was an aquamarine lace ensemble suit, with georgette trimmings, Ringtail skin slippers and hand bag, with green felt hat completed the costume.

Upon their return they will take up their residence in a newly furnished home in Oak Lane, and will be at home to their many friends after July 15th.

Mrs. Durham was born in Lambertville, but has been a resident of Edgely for the past 12 years. She attended the Bristol public schools, and was a member of the graduating class of 1925. She held a secretarial position with William Darling Inc., Trenton.

Mr. Durham was born in Germantown, and is a graduate of Germantown high school. He holds an executive position with Sears Roebuck and Co., Philadelphia.

The bride was the recipient of many beautiful gifts.

Guests were present from Philadelphia, Ocean City, Trenton, Lambertville, Bristol and Edgely.

WILL RETURN TO THEIR HOME

Mrs. Mary L. Gilkeson and daughter, Miss Ellen Gilkeson, who have been passing the winter in Ashbury Park, N. J., with Mrs. Gilkeson's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Stackhouse, will return to Bristol in July, and again take up their residence at 920 Radcliffe.

After the First Twenty-five Thousand Miles

THE VALUE of sound design, good materials and careful craftsmanship is especially apparent in the new Ford after the first twenty-five thousand miles. Long, continuous service emphasizes its mechanical reliability and economy of operation and up-keep.

As you drive the Ford through many months and years you will develop an increasing pride in its appearance and a growing respect for the substantial worth that has been built into it. From every standpoint—in everything that goes to make a good automobile—you will know that you have made a far-seeing, satisfactory purchase.

Wherever you go, you hear enthusiastic praise of the car and this significant, oft-repeated phrase—"I'm glad I bought a Ford."

A FORD owner in New York tells of a 13,000-mile trip across the United States and back in sixty days and says "the car was extremely economical to operate, comfortable and speedy." A grateful father tells how the Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield saved his wife and children from serious injury.

To test tires, a large company drove a new Ford day and night, for an average of 500 miles every twenty-four hours. It was still giving satisfactory service after 105,000 miles.

A Ford car that had fallen into Fernan Lake was submerged for twelve days before being raised. After a new battery and carburetor bowl were installed, it was driven back to Spokane under its own power.

Many police departments have written of the special advantages of the Ford in crowded traffic because of its alert speed, acceleration, and ease of control. An increasing number of fleet owners are also purchasing the Ford because their cost figures have given conclusive proof of its economy of operation and up-keep.

In addition to important triumphs in Germany, France and Italy, the Ford won six out of seven leading places in a contest in Finland, first and second in the Rafaela races in Argentina, first and second in the run from Copenhagen-to-Paris-to-Copenhagen, three gold medals in England, first ranking in the durability test over the tortuous Amancaes road in Peru, and first place in the 1930 reliability run conducted by the Royal Automobile Club of Sweden.

This contest was an exceptionally severe test of endurance and sturdy construction because it was held in the dead of winter and covered 600 miles of steady running over snow-covered country roads and mountainous hills.

Five Convenient Rooms in English Style

House No. 529

HERE is an unusually attractive design for a five-room house. It was inspired by the style that has given the English Cottage such a picturesque and popular appeal. This style of architecture is now in high favor, for it is admirably adapted to the modern small house and can be given attractive and interesting treatments.

This house lends itself to many situations. It is ideal for a corner lot; or it may be placed either endwise or broadside to the street on an inside lot, and so be built on either a wide or a narrow frontage.

Face brick, so admirably adapted to modern home construction, has wisely been chosen as the ideal material to bring out the lines of the architecture. With the colorful beauty of the brick set off against mortar joints of harmonious color, this really small home appears much larger than it actually is. The porch on the front and the attached garage in the rear helps to make the house appear large.

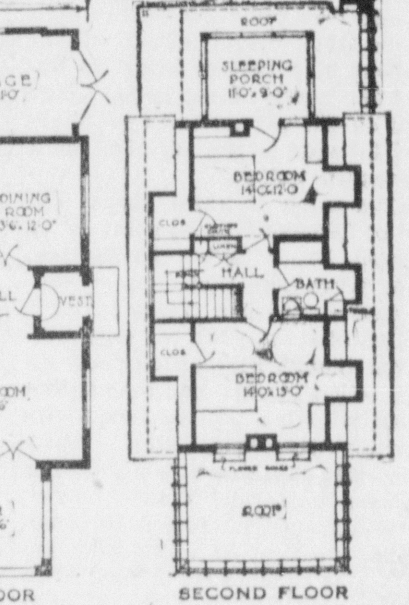

The plan combines many popular features. The living room occupies one end of the house, and obtains good light and excellent outlook on three sides. The cheerful fireplace, with the adjacent built-in bookshelves, becomes the heart of the home when the family gathers on a winter's evening.

Double casement doors open from the living room to the porch, and a wide opening leads to the hall, which is centrally located, thus making communication with all parts of the house easy. The dining room opens from this hall and connects directly with the kitchen, which is equipped with cabinets.

On the second floor there are two good bedrooms each occupying an end of the house with a bathroom between. A sleeping porch at one end is an added feature. Besides the bedroom closets, which are large and ventilated by windows, there is a convenient linen closet near the bathroom in the hall.

The garage is built in connection with and heated from the house. One may enter it from the outside by way of a roofed back porch. The outside entrance makes the garage safer from fire than when it is directly connected with a room of the house; besides gasoline fumes and odors cannot enter the house.

The ceiling heights are 8 feet 6 inches for the first floor and 8 feet for the second floor. The content of the house is 32,000 cubic feet.

If you are interested in working drawings for House No. 529, the editor of this paper will gladly tell you where they may be obtained.

1930-1931 TO WITNESS 100 BILLIARD TOURNEYS

CHICAGO, June 19—More than 100 billiard tournaments, of which 28 are of major ranking, will be held in 1930 and 1931, according to an announcement by the National Billiard Association of America here.

The program will be the most elaborate ever arranged for the cue game, and will be the beginning of a drive to give billiards a major rating in sports. It is estimated that almost $100,000 in prize money will be distributed.

C. A. Storer, director of tournaments for the association, is now on a 15,000 mile tour undertaken to arrange for the tournaments. He will visit 26 states and more than 100 cities, and the tour will require three months to complete. The projected tournaments will include contests for the masters, for the Class A, B, C, and D players, and for the juniors, or boys under 15 years of age.

It is estimated by the National Billiard Association that there are more than 7,000,000 billiard players in the United States today, that through the medium of the small or junior table at least 3,000,000 players will be added within the next five years, and that with the high calibre of players now coming into the game the United States will be able to meet all competition from foreign countries which now boast much high grade billiard talent.

Director Storer first will visit Bloomington, Springfield and Alton, Illinois, then go on to St. Louis. From there he will move on to Memphis, Chattanooga, Nashville and Jackson in Tennessee, then down through Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Louisiana, Texas, Oklahoma, then on to the Coast. He will return to Chicago by way of Montana, Utah, Colorado, Wyoming, Kansas, Nebraska and Iowa, which will be the first leg of the tour. Then will follow trips to the North, and on his return to Chicago, he will continue to the East.

"Due to the heavy preliminary schedule which has been arranged for billiards during the coming season," said Director Storer, "it has been found necessary to map out the campaign in detail and get an early start. Much territory must be covered, much organizing must be done and many tournaments preliminary to the sectionals. When those early tournaments are over, then the sectionals must be staged, and all these tournament activities must be completed before Dec. 1 in order to have the way clear for the world's championships at three styles of billiards."

"I found the sectional plan so successful last season in the way of unearthing new billiard talent and developing sectional interest in the sport that this year we have more than trebled our sectional tournaments. In many states we will conduct district and state tournaments year we had eight sectionals and out of those we developed four new players for world's championship competition at pocket billiards and three-cushions. Balkline, overlooked during 1929-30, certainly will come in for much attention during 1930-31."

"It is worth mentioning that for the first time the juniors will be recognized. The introduction of the small table has aroused so much interest in the game for the boys and the demands have been so insistent for tournaments in order to determine a recognized junior leader, that the National Billiard Association has decided definitely to hold a national junior championship. It now is necessary to hold a series of district and sectional tournaments in order to select candidates for the national."

The district and state tournaments will be held during September and October and the sectionals in November. The balkline plans call for an American tournament from which two players will qualify for the world's championship. The only two American players now expected to be named without qualifying are Jake Schaefer and Welker Cochran. It now looks as though Willie Hoppe will have to take part in a qualifying tournament for the first time in his thirty years of billiards.

Robert F. Lehman, who is a student of Amherst College, at Amherst, Mass., arrived at the home of his parents, Dr. and Mrs. Frank Lehman, of Radcliffe street, on Friday, for his summer vacation.

GODFREY BOUT SHOULD END CARNERA ARGUMENTS

Veils of mystery still enshroud Carnera today.

Months ago "Footsie" was shipped to this land of the ballyhoo, with nothing to recommend him other than a ponderous frame, great height, mammoth feet and a knowing smile. Leon See, the behemoth's pilot, immediately placed his importation under the shrewd tutelage of Bill Duffy with the intention of converting Primo into a million dollar proposition in two ways.

One way via the ballyhoo. The other was in teaching this fellow how to use those overgrown hands of his. The former succeeded. The latter, however, seems to be still in the process of earnest endeavor for, to date, Carnera's fighting has been such that even the most astute experts in cauliflower alley are divided in their opinions.

There are those who maintain Carnera is capable of colliding with and passing any ring test, basing their assertions on the sheer power behind the blows of "Footsie" and the abnormal advantages he carries into the ring with him in height, reach and weight. They also contend that the Villanous Venetian can move about like a middleweight and the fury he imparts to an attack speaks reservoirs for his sense of "kill."

On the other hand, though, there are just as many who insist that Carnera is nothing but a physical freak who has fed on nothing but alleged fighters and has nothing in the way of ability inside the roped arena outside of a beastly craving to shove his enemy into oblivion because he still is ignorant how to fight one into an unconscious state. Primo will, it is banded about in a further effort to belittle him, gently stretch his huge self out on the canvas and "yell murder" if he ever is the recipient of a well-intended wallop.

Nothing much is aired about the ability of "Footsie" to outpoint or be outpointed. Every tanker he has met since arriving here folded up so suddenly that Primo has yet to travel a scheduled distance. But, for that matter, even though his capacity for absorbing lethal larrups and outlasting and outwallowing an opponent are extensively discussed, that really doesn't prove anything either way. The fact seems to persist that "Footsie" still has his most important tests before him, the first of which may arrive when he squares off against Feab S. Williams in Philadelphia in the near future.

Feab S. Williams, if you don't know is none other than George Godfrey, whose mention should be sufficient in itself. Originally Godfrey was slated to supply "Footsie" with his second lesson in canvas mechanics. The initial instructor was to have been Meyer "K. O." Christner, of the Akron, Ohio, Christners, but they say Meyer recently laid a swell egg, even though critics declare it wasn't his fault.

A fellow like Christner, who became famous through his knockout of Knute Hansen in 1928, and then went on to battle superbly with Sharkey, Paulino, Risko, Schaff and Maloney, was regarded as some thing of an ideal test for the Big Alps Man. Only Otto Von Porat had been able to slip him the sock and he had taken and given with the best of him. His nickname of "K. O." surely attested for his thwack too.

So it looked as if "Footsie" had rebelled against crushing the fourteenth raters anymore. The two months lay-off that followed his unsavory bout with Leon "Bombo" Chevalier on the Pacific Coast probably brought him to his senses. And it seemed no more than just that the public receive a real line on the prowess of the man they were making far richer than most of themselves.

Now the Christner affray is history. To everybody's regret Carnera is yet a pummeling puzzle. There were those who claimed "Footsie" prepped Meyer for the finale in the fourth round at Detroit in the illegal and ignominious way of playfully poking his eyes out with the thumbs of his gloves, and then stiffening him out for the count with a well timed left hook and a venomous right uppercut to the point of the jaw. But there were some who insisted that Primo gashed Meyer's eyes with his terrific hitting and then proceeded in his usual systematic mode of "starching" an antagonist. Furthermore, Christner's crazy right couldn't slay Primo.

One thing that was apparent, however, at the conclusion of the battle, when Primo was hissed from the arena and Christner was loudly cheered, was the manner in which Christner outpointed Carnera all the way. Since Chevalier and perhaps others are supposed to have outwitted the Italian in their fray, perhaps the crowd is sensing the fact that this big fellow's wins are as queer to explain as his entire fighting career since his arrival here. But witnesses at the ringside of Carnera's bouts almost always furnish contradictory reports, which only complicates the situation.

Now, therefore, "Footsie" faces the proposition of whipping or being whipped by one of the best heavyweight extant—George Godfrey. Will he win unquestionably or will he emerge from another "test" with that veil of mystery? The answer may be more dependent upon Godfrey than Carnera for people are beginning to believe that "Footsie" can't do his own explaining.

ABSENCE OF MURDER SUSPECT STILL MYSTERY

By James Adam
(International News Service Special Correspondent)

SAN FRANCISCO, June 19—It was just a year ago that William P. Tallman, dapper young radio operator, vanished from the coastwise steamer Admiral Benson in or near San Francisco harbor as detectives waited on the dock to arrest him for the murder of beautiful Mrs. Virginia Patty in Los Angeles.

And police here and in the south are just as much baffled now as they were then to know what became of Tallman after he broke out of a locked cabin aboard ship at night.

For in the past year not the slightest tangible clue has been uncovered as to his possible whereabouts although his description has been broadcast the world over.

Ship after ship has been searched at foreign and domestic ports; rooming houses and hotels in scores of cities have been combed; shipping offices everywhere have been watched and a hundred and one other efforts made to find him but all in vain.

Whether he committed suicide by drowning; whether he escaped by jumping overboard and swimming ashore in the darkness; or whether he made his way off the vessel in disguise are questions which remain a mystery.

Living in Oakland is Tallman's broken-hearted father, Harry Tallman, still unable to believe his son a murderer but likewise unable to explain his strange disappearance.

"We don't know what happened to Bill anymore than anyone else apparently," said the radio operator's step-mother today.

"His father and I never talk about the dreadful thing, but I know exactly how he feels. We haven't spoken about the matter for months and months because it was all so terrible."

"Bill's father is a fine upright man but he can't hide his feeling for his boy. It has been a hard blow for him to bear up under."

The murder of Mrs. Patty of which Tallman was accused was most brutal. Her body was found hanging in the closet of a Los Angeles apartment. She had been beaten to death with a brick.

Although there was no conclusive evidence connecting Tallman with her slaying, he was known to be Mrs. Patty's sweetheart in a clandestine romance and was tentatively identified as the one who had rented the "murder apartment" under the name of "W. C. Johnson."

Mrs. Patty, a striking blonde and the wife of Frank E. Patty, former Portland Ore., broker, had met Tallman on board the steamer Admiral Benson, while he was chief radio operator. He was 23 and she was 27.

On the day the body was found, Tallman was located as a passenger on the Admiral Benson at San Pedro by a newspaperman but claimed his innocence. Enroute to San Francisco he disappeared after police had radioed the captain to arrest him.

Two incidents of interest in connection with the case happened subsequently. The Admiral Benson floundered last winter off the Oregon coast and Captain of Detectives William Bean of Los Angeles, who was transferred after allowing Tallman to escape, was recently dismissed from the police force on a drunken driving charge.

They gave a new Thrill

THAT'S WHY THEY GOT THERE . . . SO QUICKLY

"Please, Mister, c'n I fly it?"

At the crack of dawn, while her family slept, this 15-year-old kid took forbidden flying lessons. Three years later she broke the world's altitude record for women.

FAST SUCCESS STORY NO. 3
ELINOR SMITH

Eighteen years old . . . and she's risen higher than any other woman in history. "Born with wings," say hard-boiled pilots.

But there's another young ace with that same story.

OLD GOLD hopped off just 4 years ago. In 3 months it zoomed into favor. In one year it climbed to the ceiling. Today, it's America's fastest growing cigarette.

Because OLD GOLD is made of better tobaccos. Endowed by nature with a new taste-thrill. Free from irritants. "O. G.," too, was "born with wings."

On May 15, '27, OLD GOLD landed at Mitchell Field. In 7 weeks it was one of the 4 fastest sellers at the airport.
